an Obstruction in the Canal Needs Removal-Police Affairs and Other News From West Washington.

On Saturday night there was a big blaze on the wharf right in the midst of millions of feet of lumber. Charles R. Schutt's kindling wood factory and planing mill were the buildings that suffered. Owing to their isolated position the flames had made good headway before they were discovered When the alarm was turned in, though, not only No. 5 engine, but No. 1 from Washington responded with a promptness that was amazing. The Georgetown fire fighter left the 30th and K street plug to her Washington assistant and threw her own hose into the Potomac. After two streams had been thrown upon the flames for over an hour they lost their destructive power. sputtered and died, but not before probably $2,500 worth of damage had been done. Had a wind been blowing at the time of the fire it is thought by the firemen that both the surrounding lumber yards would have been burnt out of existence.

The fire is said to have been the work of an incendiary, as not a spark had been left in either building, every fire having been carefully extinguished on the closing down hour. There was no insurance on the buildings.

Merely a Safeguard.

There was some little excitement on a Belt time street car Saturday evening near the corner of 7th and 0 streets. A well-dressed young man fainted on the car, and when those about him came to look through his pockets for some means of identification they found a slip of paper bearing the words, "Kane-lif you find me sick send me to Providence Hospital." It was thought by some that this was evidence of an attempt at suicide, but when the young man was taken to the hospital it was soon learned that such was not the case, but that he was subject to such attacks, and this was merely a safeguard on his part.

This chorus now ranks second in oint of numbers and among the best as to uality of tone and balancing of voices. The northwestern division held its first re hearsal under its director, Mr. Donald B. MacLeod, last Friday night in the Upiscopal Church, on 23d street. As this division is now the result of the consolidation of the western and northwestern divisions. Prof. Cloward has suggested the advisability of alternating the place of rehearsal between the 23d street church and one further into the northwestern section. Mr. MacLeod will carry out this suggestion as soon as a desirable place for rehearsal can be secured.

The north central division, under Mr. G.
W. Lawrence's direction, is progressing finely, and at its last rehearsal had seventyeight members enrolled. So far as the Anacostia chorus is con-cerned Mr. John A. Roeder is getting his force in excellent shape.

Mr. Geo. Godron has held his first rehearsal in the southwestern division and started with an excellent attendance considering the difficulties that have been encountered in this section.

I expect to have over three hundred voices and to find them in fair shape, even though some have had but one reharmal."

even though some have had but one rehearsal."

Mr. James Watson has found it impossible to give the proper attention to the Mt. Pleasant section, although he would be glad to do so if circumstances would permit. He has therefore been compelled to resign as assistant director, and Professor Cloward has placed this division in charge of Mr. Fred A. Grant, who went to Mt. Pleasant Saturday night to begin the work of organization. Mr. Somerville, the president of the Mt. Pleasant Choral Society, left Saturday for a two weeks' trip, but before going arranged for the prominent members of his society to meet Mr. Grant, and the work will now go rapidly forward.

Tonight Mr. Walker McArthur will hold the first rehearsal of the central division in the Congregational Church, corner 10th and G streets. Mr. McArthur is the director of the Y. P. S. C. E. Society of the District, and will receive valuable aid from that source, and besides he has one of the most popular sections to draw from. It is expected that this division will furnish the largest chorus when the work gets fairly in hand.

Roeder is confident of securing a chorus of at least fifty good voices. One attraction of his rehearsals is that he has for accompaniment a flute, violin and plano.

The western division will hold a rehearsal tonight at the parish hall of St. Paul's Church on 23d street, and the director, Mr. MacLeod, expects that there will be a good attendance.

Old and New Ways at a Fire. The extinguishment of the fire on Commerce avenue, as telegraphed to The Star on Saturday, was made by the use of the various means, new and old, for terminating conflagrations. The steamers surrounded the fire with walls of Mt. Cameron water. The hook and ladder company men were busy everywhere with their axes and hooks pulling down frames that would else have spread the fire. The little chemical engines were made ready for use in the interior of some of the threatened houses on the borders of the fiames. The most notable method was, however, the use of the old-fashioned line with fire buckets from a pump. The old house on King street adjoining the railroad hotel, had its roof set on fire in many places by the falling sparks. At once a line was formed carrying buckets from a pump on King and Commerce streets, and ascending a relief ladder to the threatened roof, where some young firemen deluged each of the places where the roof was on fire, and by keeping the roof wet saved that section from a new fire. rounded the fire with walls of Mt. There was nothing to mar the happiness of the boys on their arrival, save, perhaps, the excessive dust, as rain has not fallen here for weeks past. Many of the men were hungry, having missed supper at home. They expected to get something to eat at the hotel. It was too late, however, and the consequence was a run (something like the banks have nowadays) on the neighboring grocery stores. HE WAS AFTER CHICKENS.

He Captured the Fowls, but an Officer Captured Him. Policeman W. T. Anderson of the Anacostia sub-station had a tiresome duty to perform yesterday when he made an arrest of an alleged negro burglar. Several nights rive and continued throughout the day to pour in in great numbers, notwithstanding the extremely dusty roads. The morning and afternoon trains brought in from Washington, and points along the line, hundreds more, swelling the crowd to at least 5,000. The best of order prevailed throughout the day, in striking contrast to some of the former years and making the duties of the officers an easy task. There was an air of quietude on "Political Hill" owing to the fact that there are no political "axes to grind" as has always been, prior to and during camp in past years.

The attendance at the religious services were never better, the temple being taxed to its utmost capacity during the whole distribution of the many states of the Misses Bauer, sinc. which time a watch has been kept.
